Membership Plan

Regular dental visits are an important part of your total healthcare and wellness. The American Dental Association (ADA) recommends a visit to your dentist at least once every six months.

During your periodic dental exam, our clinical staff checks for many things including loose, cracked or decaying teeth; cavities; gum recession and disease; evaluating old restorative work like fillings and crowns; and suspicious areas in the soft tissues within your mouth.

X-rays allow the doctor to see beneath the surface of the teeth to diagnose problem areas like decay, the health of the tooth nerve/root, and for children and young adults, the formation and movement of adult and wisdom teeth.

A periodic dental cleaning addresses plaque, tartar, and staining on the surface of your teeth, as well as flossing and polishing.

Regular fluoride varnish treatments keep your teeth strong and decay resistant, and can also help reduce inflammation in gum tissue.
